

1 Going orienteering

Interviewer: Olivia, did you enjoy your holiday?

Olivia: Oh yes, I had a fantastic holiday. We went to Germany.
During the first week the weather was not that good. But the second week was sunny, and we did lots of activities.

Interviewer: What did you do?

Olivia: One day we did some really cool orienteering.
The trainer was really nice. He gave us some great tips and showed us how to use a compass.

Interviewer: Was that difficult?

Olivia: Not really. We all knew where we were going.
But then we lost our way. Suddenly we were alone in the mountains.

Interviewer: What did you do? Did you call somebody?

Olivia: We didn't take our phones.
When you go orienteering, you don't take your mobiles.

Interviewer: Didn't you meet any other people?

Olivia: No, we didn't. We were really scared. And we were hungry.

Interviewer: What did you do? Didn't you have a map?

Olivia: Well, that was the problem. I didn't put the map into my bag. My parents got very angry.
Finally, we met a girl from the nearby farm and she took us to her farm.
Her parents were very friendly and gave us something to eat and drink.

Interviewer: So how did it all end?

Olivia: We had a look at the farm animals and played with the dog, Keira.
She was very friendly, and she liked to play catch the ball with us.

Interviewer: And how did you get home?

Olivia: The farmer took us home in his car. That was really nice.
